

To whom it may concern,

I am pleased to recommend Santiago Pedrazzoli as an exceptional actor and a committed collaborator. I had the pleasure of meeting Santiago when I was invited to teach a series of classes as a director at the Instituto del Cine de Madrid in 2022. From the very beginning, his dedication and professionalism stood out, leaving a lasting impression on me.

A year later, I decided to count with Santiago for the project "Tigre Blanco," a play by Felipe Curiel that I directed at Microteatro de Madrid. The production addressed sensitive topics related to drugs, sex, and violence, so it was crucial to have a confident and committed actor. Santiago proved to be the perfect choice, excelling in rehearsals and masterfully taking on the challenging role in over 80 performances of "Tigre Blanco."

There are three aspects of Santiago as an actor that were decisive in choosing him. Firstly, his commendable work ethic: he always arrived prepared, with the material learned and worked on, ready to delve into character construction and play development. His willingness to rehearse tirelessly and tackle any challenge was evident from the start.

Secondly, I highlight Santiago's courage to take on risky roles, involving significant physical and emotional exposure, embodying socially incorrect characters or exploring human pettiness and misery. His ability and willingness to tackle challenging projects with integrity and authenticity are impressive.

Lastly, I want to emphasize Santiago's trust in the creative process and direction. Always receptive to new proposals, critiques, and observations, Santiago fully immerses himself in the work, enjoying every rehearsal and positively contributing to the artistic development of the production.

In addition to his outstanding acting skills, Santiago is a warm and pleasant human being. His willingness to collaborate is always accompanied by a smile, and his problem-solving approach significantly contributes to the positive atmosphere in the work environment.

In summary, I highly recommend Santiago Pedrazzoli as a talented, committed, and versatile actor. His contribution to "Tigre Blanco" was invaluable, and I am confident that he will continue to shine in all the projects that await him.

I will be happy to provide more information about Santiago if needed.

Sincerely, Miguel Alcantud
